Good morning {firstname},

At this time of year Cyclamen are to be found not only in garden centres but at your favourite DIY supplier and in supermarkets, such is the popularity of these brightly coloured little flowers. The attraction is obvious, the pop of colour they bring to the dull days of November.

If you're buying for outside best to go to the garden centre, the plants found in supermarkets are probably the indoor variety and they are not winter hardy. Outdoor cyclamen are great as long as you protect them from frost and will keep flowering for several weeks..

In The Journal this week an insight into the different types of photo frame available from Genesis Imaging.

If you have ever wondered what goes into a frame or which framing option to choose it's all here with illustrations. I hope you find it interesting.

Until next Monday have a great week.
